MAUNA LOA IS IN AGAIN

With Fresh Laughing Gas in Medicine Chest.

Again the arrival of the steamer Mauna Loa from Kona and Kau landings promotes the gaiety of the town. This time it is a cloudburst in the Hualalai mountain region, which washes not only the dirt but large amounts of movable property from the face of the country.

Corroborative evidence of the story comes in the mails to the extent that there was a heavy rainstorm in North Kona on Thursday of last week. Some washing out of crops of settlers resulted. It is where the steamer account talks of formidable rivers inland and gigantic waterfalls on the coast that people who know the physical features of the region begin to laugh.

The face of the country is mostly a crazy quilt pattern of a-a lava flows, over which water cannot run for any great distance. It sinks through the porous crust into the honeycombed interior of the mountainside.

All about "havo" played with live stock on the Hayselden ranch at Kailua, together with most of the statement of damage to crops on the same place, came out of the laughing gas always carried in the Mauna Loa's medicine chest. Fred H. Hayselden has received a letter from his son on the ranch, which leaves no doubt of the fact that it rained some there. Instead of a flood coming with the suddenness of a cloudburst, there was a steady downpour from 2 till 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In that time the rainfall was of the respectable volume of 3.88 inches, or nearly as great as that of a Hilo shower. On the Hayselden ranch the flood uprooted a few potatoes, which were saved by covering with earth again.

The Hayselden ranch is about eight miles from the beach and the nature of the ground below it is such that a stream from there could not get to the beach. "Eight feet of water on the Kailua land" is regarded by Mr. Hayselden as equal to the Mauna Loa's account of flying fish coming ashore to milk the kine.

Then, as to the two poor little pigs rescued at sea by the steamer's crew, they happen in fact to be a couple of tame grunts kept by Captain Simerson as deck pets. The piglets may periodically be washed in the sea, but were never washed into the ocean. If the common belief is correct, pigs are poor swimmers.

FIRST VACATION IN 17 YEARS

Caretaker Green of the Capitol Building and grounds returns today to his duties from a month's vacation spent at Waikiki, where, however, he kept in touch with his department. It was his first vacation in his seventeen years of official life and the four more years as well that Mr. Green has spent in the islands. In that time he has not been off the island, and is said to have been to Diamond Head but once, and to have rarely seen a locomotive on the Oahu Railway.

This is a somewhat passive existence to a man who went through the four stirring years of the Civil War in the Union Army.
